Beyond Recycled Water, When Are We Going to Drink It?

Speakers:

Jonathan Bishop, Deputy Director, State Water Resources Control Board

Bahman Sheik, Ph.D., P.E., Water Reuse Consultant

Joe Geever, Public Policy Director, Surfrider Foundation

Brent Eidson, Assistant Director, Intergovernmental Relations Department, City of San Diego

Meeting Topic:

After years of controversy, recycled water projects are finally moving forward. Many agree it is about time, with over 4 million acre-feet of highly treated waste water discharged every year. What is Indirect Potable Reuse (IPR), what do IPR projects look like and where will they be located? Has the recent State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) Recycled Water Policy had a positive impact on advancing recycled water projects, and are there other actions the SWRCB could take? Listen to the experts discuss projects across the country and around the world.
