Meeting Topic:

A Comprehensive Solution for the Delta and the Cutting-Edge Environmental Projects Planned for a Sustainable Ecosystem

Speakers:

Tim Brick, Chairman of the Board, Metropolitan Water District of Southern California

Leo Winternitz, Delta Project Director, The Nature Conservancy

California's Delta needs a comprehensive set of actions to revive its failing ecosystem and assure reliable water supplies. Exciting new strategies and projects are emerging that will begin to address the Delta's environmental challenges. Some of these projects can be implemented immediately, while others are part of a long-term restoration strategy.

Join us for a discussion of the critical decisions before the California Legislature and the opportunities to improve water supply reliability and the environment. Learn about some of the cutting-edge projects designed to advance the Delta's environmental goals. Projects to be discussed will include subsidence reversal and carbon sequestration, wetlands restoration, and the Two-Gates project to protect delta smelt.
